Concerning the farmers' market bill, the committee decided to insist that the commissioners specify the site for the market in order that it may be included in the bill. The commissioners have sought not to commit themselves on a site, although the general impression has been that they have agreed on the Eckington site.

While under the committee's action the commissioners may make the site known immediately it is likely that if they do name Eckington there will be enough opposition on the committee to keep it out of the bill. There is considerable favor among the senators for the Southwest site, and midcity seems to have a strong following for second choice.

New Head Reported For Soldiers' Home

Reports of a possible change in the governorship of the United States Soldiers' Home were prevalent following a regular monthly meeting of army officers forming the board of directors yesterday, although Maj. Some of the business men referred to the Fitzgerald bill as monopolistic, communistic and—a vehicle for nation-wide propagands. Some of the labor men referred to the Underhill bill as having been framed by insurance companies seeking business and as a backfire to defeat compensation altogether.

The calling of names, however, was ended before the discussion had proceeded far. Then it was stated the disputed issue was that the employers object to collective liability by employers, wanting each employer to pay only for injuries to his men, whereas labor wants industry generally to remove from the shoulders of the public the burden of caring for industry's criples, paupers, widows and orphans.

Following the hearing last night the council took no action, but accepted briefs and other documents for consideration, in addition to the oral testimony.

W. W. Everett, vice president of Woodward & Lothrop and chairman of the joint committee of business men on workmen's compensation, engineered the presentation of the arguments.

The employer spokesman said competition of insurance companies to get the business would make private insurance under the Underhill bill cheaper than what they termed the government monopoly of insurance under the Fitzgerald bill, that the latter measure would tend toward bureaucray, would increase taxes and was dangerous to business in that it, as Gen. Stephan put it, placed a "blank check" in the hands of the compensation commission in the form of authority to levy premiums on employers to any amount they might see fit.

The labor men said employes would get more compensation with greater certainty under the Fitzgerald bill and disputed their opponents statements of cost, saying that government insurance would cost less and would not increase taxes.

Status.

In a third decision by Comptroller General McCarl, the board of commissioners was told yesterday that salary changes from Class 2A to Class 2C for Junior High school teachers, as ordered by him in two prior decisions, need not be made retroactive. Approximately 30 teachers were affected, one-third to gain over their present salaries by placement in a lower class, and others to lose in salary for a varying number of years by placement in the higher 2C class, for which they will receive no longevity increases.

Under the retroactive principle, teachers were notified that they "might be required" to refund to the government sums ranging from $100 to $800. By the last deckion of the comptroller general, certain teachers will lose on heat year's salary $100 to $200, but will be placed in a class which automatically increases to $400 more than the 2A group.

The Comptroller General stood on the merits of his two previous decisions, which grew out of submission of the case to him by six teachers of Shaw and Randall Junior High schools. The board of education, which has had the case before it for nearly three years, referred it to a committee headed by Charles F. Carusi, for a satisfactory settlement. LA GUARDIA CHARGES U.S. AIDED DIVERSION OF POISON ALCOHOL drew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury.

The operation, which was not included in the report of such activities made to the Senate by the Treasury Department, was set up in New York in 1925, Representative LeQuardia said, "with the knowledge and connivance of the government and with public funds" and "intending all of the time that it (poison alcohol) should be diverted, knowing full well that it would be unlawfully put into beverages and innocent people poisoned."

Brought Much to Light.

Drought Much to Light.

Almost as much interest attaches to the manner in which Representative LaGuardia manages to discover these secret Treasury operations as the revelations themselves. This is the third time that the New York Socialist has revealed the alleged operations of "undercover" Treasury agents in various parts of the country.

It was he who first brought to light the Bridge Whist club in New York, established by government agents, and the fact that prohibition enforcement officers had conducted a speakeasy and a distillery in some operations around Norfolk.

His letter to Secretary Melion follows: "A few days ago there appeared in the press a statement from your department justifying the use of the undercover system and in support of legislation to legalize their use, which said that in one instance at least 20 indictments had been obtained. I know you desire to be fair, about such statements going out to the public. Therefore I want to inform you that just as you were not advised of the details of the Bridge Whist club and the Norfolk pool room and the Slizabeth City distillery, you have not been told the full particulars of the undercover plant leading to these 20 indictments.

"Now then to come back to the indictments obtained by this man Rolls, who diverted this poison alcohol with the knowledge and consent of your department. These indictments on which it is sought to legalize the continuance of this victous system are absolutely worthless. The indictments have been pending over one year and I charge that neither your department nor the district attorney for the Bouthern district of New York dare go to trial with these cases."

less than half the value placed on it by former Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue Taibot, government witnesses testified at hearings yesterday before the board of tax appeals in the $30,000,000 tax suit.

Testimony of the government witnesses was in marked contrast to that of financiers, automobile manufacturers and economists presented by the former minority stockholders of the Ford company who are resisting the government's effort to collect an additional $30,000,000 in taxes from them as due on their profits from the sale in 1919 of 9,170 shares of stock to Henry Ford at $12,500 a share.

There were no word pictures yearerday of the development of an epic of modern business. Rather, there was admission that the Ford company was a profitable enough venture, but it was not, in 1913, the magic purae stockholders' witnesses had described it.

Wilson Hurt Values.

Two witnesses, Arthur C. Dodge, of Clark & Dodge, of New York, Investment bankers, and Sidney J. Weinberg, of Goldman, Sachs & Co., placed the value of the Ford stock as of March, 1913, at not more than $4,250, in sharp contrast to the $9,500 s share Talbot valuation and the higher value witnesses for the former stockholders previously had estimated it.

Mr. Dodge delved into speeches made by President V.lison in the 1912 campaign for reasons which had lessened the 1913 value of the Ford stock. The inveighing of President Wilson against big business malefactors generally and ind declaration that they should be hanged on gallows 'as high es Haman's,' Mr. Choate said, had had a generally detrimental effect on big business and stocks, and undoubtedly affected the value of the Ford stock. Says Basic Law Chaotic

Cuvillier and Wheeler, in Magazine Articles, Present Contrasting Claims.

Invocation of a constitutional convention to revise the nation's Constitution is proposed by Louis A. Cuviller, New York assemblyman, and opposed by Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, in articles

Says Basic Law Chaotic.

The Constitution, as it now stands, he said, is a chaotic mass of conflicting provisions and amendments. The government has so clearly failed to enforce the prohibition law that the eighteenth amendment must be repealed or modified, and such action by Congress itself "is in the last degree improbable," Mr. Cuvillier said, adding that in view of the demands for a constitutional assembly from 32 States. Congress either must comply or be completed to do so by the courts. Opposing the convention, Mr. Wheeler, while admitting that 32 States have asked that a constitutional provision.

Mr. Wheeler, delared these formal applications, extending back to 1901, were separate on 32 States within the intent of the constitutional provision.

mand from 32 States within the intent of the constitutional provision.

Mr. Wheeler declared that the sole purpose of Mr. Cuvillier's proposal was repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment and challenged proponents of the constitutional convention to fight it out on the basis of submission of the single question to the States for approval in the same manner as the amendment had been adopted.

approval in the same manner as the amendment had been adopted.

Cuvillier Presents Case.

Supporting a constitutional convention, Mr. Cuvillier said in part:
"Now the surprising fact, which no one, apparently, realizes, is that 32 States have already made such formal application. Seven States—Colorado, Michigan, Minnesota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Texas—led the way in 1901. There was another outburst of applications in 1907, Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Kanasa, Louislana, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey and West Virginia added themselves to the list. And at various dates between list. And at various dates between 1901 and 1926 other States have made application, the latest being Nevads, which sent in a second application last year.

"While it would be very difficult, therefore, to get rid of the eighteenth amendment by the cumbersome machinery of repeal, the calling of a convention which, by adopting an entirely new constitution, would rid us at a stroke of the eighteenth amendment and such other portions of our governmental machinery as have proved themselves impractical, is a fairly simple matter.

Substitution was sought by House will vote against passage of the substitution was sought by the Senate. This was approved by the Senate. This would send the measure immediately to the White House and avert a possible full buster should a conference between the two houses be necessary because of

"I can not emphasize too strongly, even at the risk of repetition, that under the Constitution Congress has absolutely no discretion. The requisite number of applications having been handed in, the issuing of the call is Mandate to Congress.

"If Congress should refuse to perform its duty, there must remain some means of forcing it to perform its duty, there must remain some means of forcing it to perform its duty, there must remain some means of forcing it to perform its duty, there were the Congress would then become a body above the law, above even the Constitution itself.

"In this one case, Congress is not a legislative body at all, but simply an agent appointed and commanded by the Constitution to perform a specific act when specific conditions have been fulfilled. As a State legislature is competent to make application for a constitutional convention, it is obviously also competent to withdraw its application. And if a legislature does not withdraw such an application, its clear that the application remains in force."

A prediction that President Coolidge would even the bill was made in the House by several speakers. Representative O'Connor (Democrat), Louisiana, declared many members would "vote president will veto the bill because they think the President will veto it," while others, he added, "are planning to vote for it although they openly admit it is unconstitutional." As the debate closed, Representative Members would "vote for the bill because they think the President will veto it," while others, he declared many members would "vote for the bill because they think the President will veto it," while others, he declared many members would "vote for the bill because they think the President will veto it." while others, he declared many members would "vote for the bill because they think the President will veto it." while others, he declared many members would "vote for the bill because they think the President will veto it." while others, he declared many members would "vote for the bill because they think the President will veto it." while others, he declared many members would "vote the bill because they think the President will veto it." while others, he declared many members would "vote the bill because they thi

Wheeler Answers.

Opposing Mr. Cuvillier, Mr. Wheeler said in part:

"The probability that a national constitutional convention will be called is remote. The fact that many States have, throughout our national history, requested that a constitutional convention be called to deal with various problems, is negatived by the accompanying fact that the problems which inspired those ancient applications have been solved. Article V of the Constitution sets forth the methods of its amendment. The portion referring to the application for a constitutional convention does not mean that all the separate unrelated and obsolete applications on any and every issue reliesed since the adoption of the Constitution may be grouped and added to gether to obtain a total equal to the required two-thirds of the States. "Desire to have the eighteenth amendment repealed is the motive behind Mr. Cuviller's suggestion. If the foces of prohibition believe they represent the will of the majority required for an amendment of our fundamental law, why do they not use the more direct and customary method of submitting a proposed amendment through the affirmative action of two-thirds of the members of both branches of Congress and the ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the States?

the members of both branches of Congress and the ratification by the legislatures of three-fourths of the States? "The plan in common use, by submission of a proposal by Congress, is clearly worked out. The other is nebulous. If Congress blocks a popular demand for a constitutional amendment as shown by the affirmative action of a majority of the State legislatures the alternative plan exists as a remedy. But no such emergency has arisen. "There is, of course, no sentiment in favor of a general revision of the Constitution. It has stood for 137 years as the greatest charter of human rights and liberty ever conceived by the brain of man."

New England Governors Ask Farm Bill Opposition

Boston, Feb. 13 (By A. P.).—Twenty eight New England members of Con-gress have been asked to vote against the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill by the governors of five New England States, the National Association of Coton Manufacturers, which has spon-sored a drive against the measure, ansored a drive against the hierastre, announced tonight.

The chief executive of New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island today advised the association they had urged opposition to the bill, while Gov. Brewster, of Maine, tonight announced he "declined to embarrass our representatives in Washington by expressions of opinion on matters pending before Congress." Gov. Pothler, of Rhode Island, in voicing opposition to the bill, said, "This is an attempt by Congress to regulate prices which is contrary to our principles of government."

Influenza Increases To North in England

London, Feb. 15 (By A. P.).—The influenza epidemic is receding in southern England, but increasing in the midands, it is shown by the returns to the egistrar general.

Deaths from the disease in London for the week ended Saturday totaled 180, as against 437 for the preceding week. Other large towns reported 479 feaths, as against 381 for the precious seven days.

A BILL TO CREATE BOOTLEGGERS.

If it were not known that President Coolidge stands ready to kill the McNary-Haugen bill, the tactics employed in Congress to enact that piece of legislation would convince observers that the people could no longer expect to have their liberties preserved against the encroachment of cabals and special interests.

Secretary Mellon's analysis of the administrative costs of the McNary-Haugen system does not tell the whole story. He estimates that 100 field investigators would be required to insure the collection of the equalization fee. This is a gross underestimate, as will be manifest when it is seen that there are 3,829 millers alone who would need investigation, to say nothing of 1,252 packers and 551 cotton ginners, besides millions of farmers.

What is more natural than the growth of bootlegging and grafting under this proposed law? With a horde of Federal wheat agents. cotton agents, rice agents, hog agents, tobacco agents, and corn agents, dealing with millions of farmers and processors, the business now done by bootleggers and dry agents would be dwarfed into insignificance. Farmers would find that they could not sell their products without paying tribute to the government. This would drive them into the bootlegging of wheat, corn, hogs, rice, cotton and tobacco. They would corrupt the Federal agents and the Federal agents would corrupt them.

There is nothing criminal in taking a drink of liquor or selling a hog. No law can convince the average man that these transactions are crimes. The farmers who have voted against the equalization fee and had it thrust upon them over their vote will surely violate the law.

The bureaucracy that would be built up under the McNary-Haugen system would vastly overshadow the bureaucracy that is now struggling with the prohibition law. Tens of thousands of Federal agents would be employed, and their activities would soon call for additional hundreds or thousands of undercover "snoopers" engaged in trying to detect farmers in the act of bootlegging their products, with or without the connivance of the Federal agents.

The supporters of the McNary-Haugen bill would, if they could, fasten upon the United States a law more obnoxious than the Volstead act. It would make this country a nation of bootleggers and grafters. Fortunately the presidential veto stands between the people and this calamitous legislation.

COLORADO RIVER FLOOD DANGER.

Col. T. H. Jackson, of the corps of engineers, in charge of the San Francisco division, has made an examination of the state of affairs in the Imperial valley and has reported that there is urgent necessity for raising and strengthening the levees in order to prevent threatened floods. His opinion is supplemented by the reports of Prof. Frank Adams and R. M. Priest, of the reclamation service, who state that the Volcano levee, the last line of defense against floods, will be likely to give way when the snows melt in the upper Colorado river watershed. The whole river would be diverted into the New River channel and create a condition much harder to handle than that of 1906-1907.

Millions of dollars' worth of property and hundreds of settlers will be at the mercy of the Colorado river if the levees should give way. Immediate steps should be taken to make these levees safe. The delay and dissension of 1907 should not be repeated now. The Imperial valley is entitled to the protection of the United States government. An emergency appropriation should be voted without delay, and the reclamation service directed to strengthen the levees.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobile theft insurance rates were increased between 10 and 50 per cent recently throughout the middle West. Virtually every make of car was included in the general in crease made necessary because of the increased activity of motor thieves during 1926. The Western automobile underwriters' conference. which studied the situation, found that thefts could be placed in three classifications: The commercial theft, in which low-priced cars are stolen to be resold at a nominal price; the acessory and joy ride theft, in which mediumpriced cars are taken and stripped of tires and other accessories; and the crime theft, in which high-powered, expensive machines are taken for the personal use of bootleggers, bank robbers, highwaymen and other criminals. So active were the gentry composing these three groups last year, that their activities forced the urance companies to shoulder an actual deficit of some $3,000,000.

A great many individuals will complain against the higher rates charged for theft insurance. This feeling of resentment, how-made of great value to the community. The average citizen is prone to shrug his shoulders at discussions of the crime problem. He is not concerned in automobile thefts unless his own machine happens to be stolen. The rate revision affects every motorist, however, and should bring each to a realization that crime has a definite bearing on his daily life.

In most cases the authorities are doing their best to break up gangs of automobile thieves. All motorists should help them.

THE CORPORATION COUNSEL.

The District appropriation bill as reported to the Senate contains an amendment which provides that the corporation counsel shall be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Under existing law the corporation counsel is appointed by the District commissioners and is removable by them." He acts as legal adviser to the commission, and conducts all District litigation, under the direction of the commissioners.

It will not promote the welfare of the District government to take away the authority of the commissioners over subordinates. The commissioners are responsible for the conduct of the local government, and should be held accountable in all its branches, including the legal department. If they are prevented from exercising authority over the corporation counsel they will be unable to direct the policy or control the acts of that official, and a conflict of opinions will surely arise to embarrass everybody concerned.

The Senate should strike out the amendment in question and leave the appointment of the corporation counsel where it is now, in the hands of the District commissioners.

SPARE THE WILD FLOWERS.

It is almost time to polish up the golf clubs and look to the edge of the garden spade. The first flower of spring, according to the American Nature association, is the skunk cabbage, which blooms the last week in February or the first week in March. The pussy willow is about to burst out of its fur coat, and before long the crocus will poke its head from the still barren ground. These are tangible evidences of the approaching end of winter.

Now is the time when the great American public begins to shine up its automobile, so that on sunshiny days it can go where the breath of spring smells sweetest. This is the time to pity the poor skunk cabbage, which the public on its automobile excursions will pounce upon and pull out by its roots. The advancing season will bring trilliums, the dog tooth and white violets, the marsh marigold, the dogwood and the anemone, Jack-in-thepulpit, saxifrage and Dutchman's breeches. Beautiful names, and beautiful flowers; none of which, unless human nature has changed considerably during the winter, will be spared for others to enjoy.

Wild flowers soon wither and die when removed from their natural state. Once pulled from the ground by their roots they are destroyed forever, and a beauty spot becomes barren and ugly. Now is the time of year when the public should take stock of its outdoor manners and resolve to spare the wild flowers for the enjoyment of all

SAIL AND STEAM.

The individual who labors under the impression that the horse has been superseded by the automobile and the motor truck, except in the delivery of milk, is probably the same person who believes that the only remaining sail craft on the ocean are the catboats of Atlantic City or the bugeyes of the tidewater oysterman. He will be astonished to learn that the Department of Commerce reports that during the past year sailing ships under the American flag carried a total of more than 1,000,000 tons of merchandise to and from the ports of the United States. There are still in commission 2,362 of the old type of "windjammers" plowing the ocean, and they still earn dividends for their owners. But the American clipper, which was the pride of every old salt from Bangor to Charleston, is seldom seen, and the deep-water disappeared from the water fronts of Boston, Brooklyn and San Francisco.

In spite of the disadvantages under which American merchant shipping is conducted there are 7,273 steamships under registry of the Department of Commerce, which, compared with 120 years ago, when the first steam vessel appeared in 1807, exhibits some growth. The cargo carried by that vessel amounted to exactly 78 tons. Today the annual tonnage transported by steam vessels through the "Soo" canal alone amounts to nearly a million times that tonnage, as the commerce of the 'Soo" in 1925 reached 75,753,829 tons.

When it is realized that during the same year, 1925, the total foreign-borne tonnage of the American merchant marine was approximately only one-half of the freight tonnage which passed through the channel which connects Superior with the lower lakes, the importance of the traffic through the inland waterways of the country can be understood. The tonnage measurement of the 7,273 steam vessels of the American merchant marine, including the vessels in the lake trade, is 17,-811,147 tons, and those which sail the seven seas carried approximately 30,000,000 tons of freight to and from the ports of the world. Here also is a demonstration of the growth of American commerce, for in the year of George Washington's first inauguration the weight of cargoes entering and leaving the ports of the United States aggregated only 201,562 tons, all, of course, in sailing vessels.

FOREIGN MAIL SPECIAL DELIVERY.

The Postoffice Department announces that luring the past year reciprocal arrangements have been perfected with 23 countries in the postal union whereby letters bearing special stamps will be delivered in the country of destination by special messengers instead of through the regular channels. For this service a fee of 20 cents in addition to the regular rate of postage will be charged and it is expected that at least one full day will be saved in reaching the ultimate destination.

The special delivery service was authorized the United States more than 40 years ago and was the result of the efforts of Renre tive Charles R. Skinner, of New York, who prepared and succeeded in passing a bill to create ever, if steered into the right channel, can be the service. Mr. Skinner served in the Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Congresses and he had some difficulty at the outset in convincing his colleagues that the service proposed was desirable. But he had the indorsement of Timothy O. Howe, then the Postmaster General, who, while not enthusiastic, thought that the special service might prove of value to the business public.

When first inaugurated the service was performed by boys who received 80 per cent of the extra charge for delivery of the "special letters," but their monthly compensation was limited to a figure which would not attract the men who are regularly employed today They receive 8 cents for delivery of a special package or letter weighing up to 2 pounds, for which the charge is 10 cents, 11 cents for a package on which the charge is 15 cents. On packages weighing over ten pounds, for which the fee is 20 cents, the carrier receives 15 cents. But there is no limit to the amount which the special carriers may earn.

Until the negotiations with the 23 countries of the postal union were completed Canada was the only foreign country that delivered letters originating in the United States. The extra charge for such delivery in each of the countries that have entered into the agreement will be 20 cents, one-half of which will be credited to the country to which the letter destined and the other half credited to the postal receipts. This is the rate prevailing on letters to Canada at present. The "special delivery" charge will be uniform throughout the postal union.

TALKING MOVIES.

'A war between manufacturers of devices to produce talking moving pictures is imminent. Five companies are sponsoring developments of the principle, one of which, however, registers the voice on a record. The others utilize a more or less similar principle of impressing vibrations of the voice on the film itself, and apparently are involved in a serious patent dispute. Each is proceeding energetically with the development of its own device, and two lawsuits, at least, already have been filed.

The development of the talking moving picture will be most interesting. To many, one of the chief charms of the silent drama has been that each member of the audience was at perfect liberty to fit his own words into the mouth of the hero or heroine. Subtitles made possible the understanding of the story, but in each scene the spectator could put himself in the shoes of the actor, and in his mind, at least, develop the dialogue to suit his own fancy. With a talking movie this is impos-

It can not be denied that there is a large field of usefulness for the new device. In classroom work, for instance, it should soon become irreplaceable. With the talking moving picture a world-famous physicist literally can be transported to a tiny backwoods college to give what amounts to a personal lecture and demonstration of a new discovery, or a European surgeon without leaving his home can conduct a clinic in a New York classroom Great financial return, however, can not be ex pected from the scientific use of the prin-

Undoubtedly the new device will earn money for its owners even if it can be used only for presentation, prologue and overture purposes. If it becomes a gold mine, however, as many predict, it will be through general adoption for program and feature pictures, and this depends on the public reaction. Apparently, however, the four companies concerned in the development feel sufficiently sure of their ground to justify what undoubtedly will be a long and expensive court battle to establish the basic patent rights.

FILIBUSTERS NOT DANGEROUS.

The biennial threats of a legislative congestion in the Senate and the consequent failure of some of the important appropriation bills are again broadcast from Capitol Hill. It is no news that the Senate is in a snarl. That's the customary status of the "upper branch' of Congress every year of 'the short session, but the jam is usually broken before March 4, and the probabilities are that 1927 will be no exception to the rule.

"One-man filibusters" are not unknown Allen, of Nebraska, and Carter, of Montana, were conspicuous examples of the demonstration of "one-man power" to prevent legislation which those gentlemen in turn opposed. There are certain senators who have shown a decided disposition to ignore party rules as well as the rule of the majority, and who may endeavor to organize filibusters in opposition to the Mc-Fadden banking bill, the radio control bill and other measures which are favored by a majority of the Senate. These so-called radicals will not be permitted to carry out their plans if the leaders on both sides have their way, and that way contemplates the adoption of cloture whenever needed.

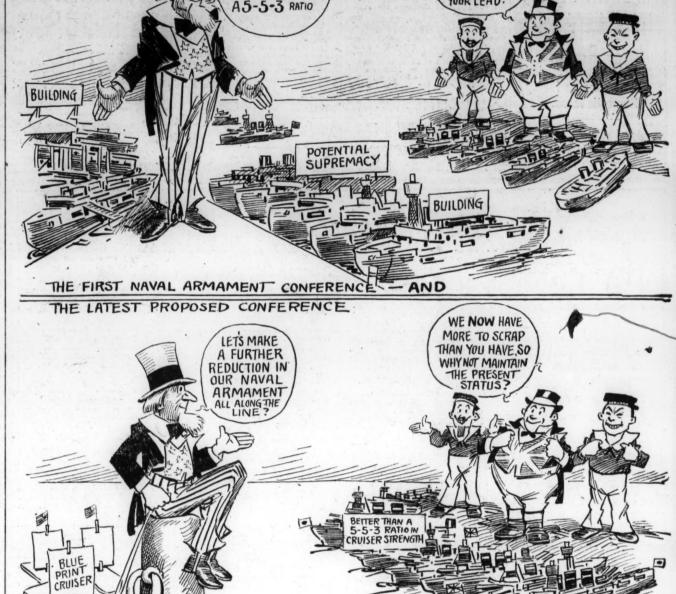

With senators anxious to complete the legislative program-and they include the leaders on both sides-it is a fair assumption that the absolutely necessary legislation will be ready for the President's signature when he reaches the Capitol before noon of March 4.

OIL SHALES AND SHALE OILS.

President Coolidge has submitted a supple mentary estimate to Congress in which it is recommended that $70,000 be added to the appropriation for the investigation of oil shales, to be available during the remainder of the present fiscal year and until the end of the next.

During the past two years $179,000 has been made available for this purpose, but owing to the difficulties encountered in ascertaining the commercial possibilities of the production of fuels from shales with existing facilities, the bureau of mines is desirous of obtaining the authority and the necessary funds with which to construct and operate a plant of sufficient capacity to enable the bureau to determine the best method for the manufacture of such fuels from shales.

Shales which are chemically capable of be ing converted into oils for fuel and gasoline are found in the Eastern States, generally, in Kentucky and the Northwest, especially in Wyoming, where millions of tons can be mined with a steam shovel. Experiments indicate that motor fuel in practically inexhaustible The government has a direct interest in the matter, since it will ultimately be necessary to produce oil for the navy from the shales within Tokyo, Feb. 15 (By A. P.) Premier Wakatsuki told the house of peers today that naval construction should proceed in Japan, notwithstanding the government's decision to participate in the naval disarmament conference posed by President Coolidge. The preparatory commission of a convertion on the private manufacture of war materials, the convocation finally of a preparatory commission to make a view to the meeting of a conference for the general limitation of armaments, a commission to which all the countries of the world have been invited and in which the greater part of them participate in the side against the constitute on the side aspecial conference in which only a few powers should participate and whose decision under penalty of being vain must at least in their principles be later recognized as valid by powers which would not have been admitted to discuss the constitute on the side as valid by powers which would not have been admitted to discuss the constitute on the side aspecial conference proposed by President Coolidge. Cite Equality Principle.

"To decide today without consulting the League of Nations and determine method and to seek a partial solution of the problem in preoccupying one-self with maintaining the actual existing situation, than in determining the conditions proper to insure the security of each one; to limit besides this effort to a few powers would be both to weaken the authority of the League of Nations see essential to the principle of the equality of states which is at the very base of the covenant of Geneva, and to which on its part the French government remains firmly attached.

"The principle of the equality of the powers, great or small, is one of the recognized rules of the League of Nations. Technical committees have met, all the maritime powers have participated in their labors, they have pointed out the necessities for their defense. How could one admit that at the moment when the preparatory commission is called upon to formulate the conclusion of its decisions the five most important maritime powers should take cognizance of the question and, as far the League of Nations and determine powers present the greatest interest. An agreement limited to a few navies could be explained for battleships; practically they are the only ones to possess any. It is otherwise when the question of light vessels is considered. All the navies of the world have an interest in being associated with the deliberations on this important problem.

liberations on this important problem.

"As for the French government, which in the question of limitation of armaments is only interested from the defensive point of view, as Mr. Briand declared to Mr. Hughes on December 18, 1921, and which in this respect must interest itself both in the protection of its coasts and in the safety of its maritime communications. Its delegates at Geneva have defended and caused to prevail in the technical commissions two general principles:

"On the one hand that one can not undertake to limit naval armaments without taking into consideration the solutions proposed for land and air armaments; on the other hand especially from the naval point of view that the limitation of armaments can only result from the attribution to any one power of a global tonnage that it remains free to divide according to the sense of its necessities.

Would Mean Contradiction.

"The American proposal sets aside immediately these two principles which would have for consequence that the French government, which has taken its stand before all the nations represented ta Geneva, could only adopt it by abandonment of its point of view. It would thus contradict itself while publicly recanting.

"The method proposed, would it be at least of a kind to obtain the looked for result? The precedent of the Rome conference in 1924 does not permit of hoping so. This conference in fact did not succeed in having adopted by the powers not represented at Washington the principles which there had been established for battleships, still less in having them extended to the other categories of vessels. These powers would not be less mindful of their own interests if they were asked again to accept principles resulting from decisions which would have been decided upon without them.

Place Hope in Geneva.

Place Hope in Geneva.

"This last objection has without doubt been considered by the American government, and if it has thought nec-essary to set it aside it is by reason of its opinion that if the problems of disarmament are not disassociated there is no hope for a practical result in the near future. The French gov-ernment thinks, on the contrary, that in the present state of the surveys with which the preparatory commission is charged, the latter can at its next ses-sion and on condition that the nations represented bring like itself a firm re-solve to succeed, make the decisions which would permit the meeting with serious chances of success of the gen-eral conference on disarmament. MILLIONS FOR VITAMIN REFUSED BY PROFESSOR

Discoverer Gives Rights to Wisconsin University, Fearing Commercialism.

PUTS SUNSHINE IN FOOD

Chicago, Feb. 15 (By A. P.).—The Daily News today said that a Wisconsin chemist has given away the paten rights for a process of putting sunlight into ordinary food in quantities which will prevent rickets and probably other diseases.

He is Henry Steenbock, of the University of Wisconsin. He has refused millions of dollars, the News said, for the sale of his process to the manufacturers of a proprietary cereal food. Instead he has introduced the discovery to the University of Wisconsin.

"If I took that money," Prof. Steenbock is quoted as saying, "it would mean that the purpose of my life has been perverted. I am happy only in the endeavor to advance the well being of humanity."

the endeavor to advance the well being of humanity."

Madison, Wis. Feb. 15 (By A. P.).—
After a lifetime devoted to research in the interest of the welfare of humanity, climaxed by the discovery of a means of impregnating food with one of the essential elements by use of the ultraviolet ray, the greatest fear of Prof. Henry Steenbock, of the University of Wisconsin, was expressed tonight as that his development might fall into selfish, allen hands.

He was extremely reluctant in elaborating upon his announcement three years ago of the discovery, and did not refer to it as the fourth vitamin, or vitamin D, as it was termed in some of the widespread publicity it achieved today.

In the building of the bone and tis.

In the building of the bone and ussues of the body, he said, calcium, or lime, is an essential, and the process he has discovered is that "compounds of plants and animal tissues are susceptible to the ultraviolet ray and may be made to develop calcium through the working of the ultraviolet ray."

may be made to develop calcium through the working of the ultraviolet ray."

Emphasis has been put upon the proper assimilation of mineral elements in the body, Prof. Steenbock said, and in view of that fact he previously has given material concerning his discovery largely to scientific magazines. It reached general publicity today only because a Chicago daily newspaper reporter happened to stumble upon the "story" while in Prof. Steenbock's office.

Rickets, one of the scourges of babyhood, could be fought to advantage under development of the discovery, it is believed, as could some of the anaemia of later life.

U. S. READY TO ENLARGE FORCE NEAR NICARAGUA

Marine Detachment Is Prepared to Sail.

LATIMER MEETS SACASA NO CUT, SAYS LEWIS

The Henderson is scheduled to meet the fleet at Guantanamo, Cuba, but should the necessity arise to increase the marine force in Nicaragua, the ship probably would proceed from Newport to Quantico, Va., where 600 marines are available for embarkation. An additional 400 marines, recalled from mail guard duty, are assembling at Quantico, and 200 more are stationed at Parris island. S. C.

No definite program for embarking marines for Nicaragua has been decided upon, but there is every indication that in the event of further fighting, which jeopardizes American lives and property as at Matagalpa, where a battle appears to be impending, a supplementary force will be dispatched.

Student Flogging Seen As Publicity in Debate

Denver, Feb. 15 (By A. P.).—Ralph Batchelet, Denver university student and vice president of the Thinkers association, who was abducted and fogged Sunday night, either was the victim of a practical joke by students or used in a scheme to get publicity for a debate on "Companionate Marriage," Chief of Police Robert F. Reed declared today. Batchelet said he believed the affair was only a practical joke.

At the time of the attack on Batchelet it was attributed to refusal of the Thinkers association, a student organization, to cancel plans for a debate between Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of the Denver juvenile court, and Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, Kansas City pastor.

Why Six-Cylinder Hauling Costs Less

SPEED WAGON CHASSIS PRICES 1090 1240 1985 @ R. M. C. Co., 1927

There's a vast difference in the day's accomplishment with a six-cylinder Speed Wagon. Weaving through city traffic or streaking away at the law's limit from town to town - the added nimbleness of two extra cylinders crowds more work into the day's routine.

Comparative cost records will disclose a startling fact-a close parallel of operating cost between the four-cylinder unit and the six-cylinder Speed Wagon. Yet an overwhelming advantage of power and flexibility is ready at instant call for hard going and for smoothing steep grades.

The enduring quality built into every Speed Wagon accounts for unfailing service with but little time for attention. And it means healthy old age with a reserve of unused miles-years beyond the life of the average truck.

We have some interesting information that may mean a saving to your business. You may have it-today, if you wish.

GEORGETOWN U. CLUB GIVES STUDENT'S PLAY

Makes Debut as Dramatist With "Jesting Satyr."

With "Jesting Satyr."

Fenton Moran, a sophomore at Georgetown college, made a successful debut as a playwright last night with the university's Mask and Bauble club. His one-act play, "The Jesting Satyr." prize winner in a recent contest conducted by the Georgetown College Journal, was presented with two others before an audience that filled the Trinity Parish hall. Fenton has gained some reputation in collegiate circles for his poetry, but "The Jesting Satyr." a fantastic tale with an Italian setting, is his first dramatic production. The cast consisted of Frank Moran, J. Commiskey, H. Weston, J. Gardner, P. Driscoll and F. Wenzle.

The other two one-act plays were "The Game of Chess." by Kenneth S. Gordon, and "Poets All," by Conrad Seller, both of a lighter vein. The cast of the former was filled by Paul Lyons, who has taken part in a number of Georgetown performances; William Ward, Philip Cahill and W. Casson. "Poets All" was acted by W. O'Nell, D. Benson, R. Christie and P. Morgan.

The success with which the presentations were received has convinced the Mask and Bauble club of the popularity of its new policy of monthly productions. The Rev. Gustave J. Duma S. J., moderator of the club, supervised Representative Rathbone Tells Commerce Chamber of Advantages Here.

EXPOSITION PROGRESSING

The National Capital is admirably situated for industrial expansion, Representative Henry R. Rathbone, of Illinois, told members of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at their meeting in the Willard hotel last night. He predicted that Washington's location as a central meeting point for North and South will eventually result in its becoming an important airport.

A report of the committee on universities, colleges and private schools, recommending that the chamber seek legislative steps by Congress to correct the present situation in Washington whereby fraudulent schools and colleges are able to obtain charters to the detriment of reputable schools was approved. The National Capital is admirably

Anton Stephan, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers association, also spoke. A resolution urging the reinstatement in the appropriations bill of three items for the widening of Connecticut avenue from M street to Phorida avenu, and Thirteenth street from I street to Massachusetts avenue, was adopted.

Jewish Campaginers Approaching Quota

Good progress toward the goal of 3,000 members was reported at the first luncheon meeting in the Jewish community center enrollment campaign yesterday at the center.

A large number of workers in the drive were present to hear Senator David I. Waish, of Massachusetts, who gave a spirited talk on the need for carrying on the work of the Jewish center. "The Jews ought to promote any movement that tends to combat antagonism to them as a race," he said. Morris Cafritz, chairman of the drive, presided. Dr. Abram Simon delivered the opening prayer.

The stage was well set before Mrs. McPherson made her appearance yesterday afternoon. For three-quarters of a hour a hymn leader worked on the audience, trying to stir it into the proper religious fervor. In the beginning the only sound in the auditorium came from the choir on the stage and the twenty-piece orchestra in the pit. But toward the end a majority of those present were singing.

They sang, "Brighten the Corner," "Where He Leads I Will Follow," "He Took Me Out of the Pit," "Revive Us Again," and other old favorites.

The Rev. Harry L. Collier, a local clergyman, announced that although no admission was charged, a free-will offering was expected, and he urged that it be a substantial one.

It was a little after 3 o'clock when Mrs. McPherson came on the stage. She was attired in a white dress and from her shoulders hung a black cape. Arrived at the center of the stage, she knelt and said a brief prayer. Then she arose and was introduced. A moment later two ushers came up and presented her with bouquets.

Airport Here Urged To Aeronautic Group

Necessity for the establishment of an airport in this city was stressed by Maj. L. D. Gardner, editor of Aviation, in an illustrated lecture before members of the District of Columbia chapter, National Aeronautic association, at the National museum last night.

Maj. Gardner said he had discussed the need of an airport here with Commissioner Dougherty, and the slatter had assured him that he would do everything in his power to establish one. He illustrated his lecture with 100 slides made during his tour of Europe last summer.

Sweeping Price Reductions

The Commander, Studebaker's Big Six Brougham, reduced

Today-February 16, 1927-Studebaker celebrates its seventy-fifth birthday with price reductions which reflect the aggressive spirit of this Company.

Studebaker has lived and grown for seventy-five years because of its consistent policy of keeping ahead of the procession.

Studebaker Custom Cars, introduced recently, exemplify this policy. They have been the most widely imitated cars ever produced. In less than six months no less than a dozen manufacturers have introduced what they call "custom models"... but a custom name doesn't make a custom car!

As Studebaker leads in design, so does it also lead in value. The new prices quoted below represent a supreme triumph of One-Profit manufacture.

THINK it's so nice, Mr. Parks, for a young man to be respectful to ladies," said Mrs. Pullen, sinking into the chair the young man differed. "Julia, you sit down, too. Why do you look so cross, child?"

The girl said nothing, but came and took her seat on one of the discarded dining-room chairs, beside her mother. "What, did you want to see me.

"What did you want to see me bout?" Pullen asked, leaning against

The stair rail.

Parks sat on the couch, and lifted his nose-glasses. "The thought is this," he said. "I am an attorney-at-law, as you know. I have no private practice since I am employed in the same office—" he bowed to Julia—"as your charming daughter. I desire to open an office of my own—to become, in short, independent."

"Well?" said Pullen, rather impatiently.

"A very large one," said Mrs. Pullen. Her husband, however, stolidly tramped up the steps, and in a moment the door of his bedroom slammed behind him.

"We certainly apologize," said Pullen's wife, aghast. "Julia and I apologize for what he said, Mr. Parks!"

The attorney, disconcerted, was trying to attach his glasses to the top button of his waistcoat, against the handicap of a shaking hand. "Why; said he. "Good gracious!" Succeeding at last in anchoring the glasses, he passed nervous fingers over his hair. "Thank you for your good words, Mrs. Pullen. "I know when I've said wise, experienced lawyer to tell us what to when the said and somed a wise, experienced lawyer to tell us what to white the said wise. The said wise was staring at her daughter, who shook her head and frowned. "Don't make faces at me, Julia!" said mrs. Pullen. "I know when I've said onugh. But you might have helped us, Mr. Parks. We did so need a wise, experienced lawyer to tell us what to do!"

"Isn't that nice?" sald her mother, with simple pleasure. I do hope he reports it around town.
"He's going to keep on trying to be papa's lawyer," Julia went on, "and I think he'll keep on trying to make love to me."

Her mother nodded. "He's madly in love with you," she said. "Anybody can see that. But, Julia—why are you so cold to him? Mama knows about these things, child—that isn't the way to interest a young man."

"Possibly not," said the girl, still smilling. "Maybe papa has the right method—Mr. Parks seemed to be inter-ested in what he said."

WIVES OF TOMORROW

-By FRANCES M'DONALD-

AVE you ever thought of your coiffure as having "atmosphere" that look well with it and there are clothes that won't do at all.

Let the woman with the mannish bob never succumb to the lure of a robe de style for evening wear unless she wears a transformation for the occasion. Such a picture dress, when worn correctly, bestows upon the wearer a certain Old-World charm, but it needs the right accessories. And the extreme boyish bob is indeed no complement. A close-cut head perched above a quaint gown of velvet and old lace lacks—as they say in the movie business—continuity. It is a jarring note, sounding to the world at large the fact that the owner lacks "clothes gense."

All of us have not been blessed with a clothes personality which can be described as distingue. But we can—all of us—make mental blueprints of the effects that we are trying to achieve. Our concern, then, is to build from that single plan and adhere to it—religiously.

Dear Miss Paris: Will you please suggest something to help eliminate lines extending from nose to mouth? I cannot use creams, as they seem to encourage a growth of superfucous hair. In the course of the next few days it developed that the loss of the big new house had disappointed Mrs. Pullen more than she was willing to admit. Three times she took fier husband and daughter, after dark, to look at the lots that lay beside Mrs. Hamilton's home. They stood, pointing out to one another where the entrance would be, and the drive, and the large garage.

"But it won't be any use building just a little house," said Mrs. Pullen, mournfully. "We've got one of those now."

This was on the third evening. They were plodding homeward, lowering their heads against a chill December wind.

"We used to have such nice card parties and all," she continued, "and I'd thought of so many nice things to do in a big house. But nobody comes to see us any more, and I can't call on any of the women—maybe it's just as well. I wouldn't know what to do with a big house, without any friends."

They turned into their own home, and mounted the steps.

"Wouldn't it be nice if we had those diamonds!" she sighed.

Pullen was fumbling for the keyhole. Footsteps sounded on the walk, and Julia, peering under her arched hand, stared at a dark figure that had detached itself from the shadow of a tree and now moved toward them, "Why, Sami" she cried, delightedly. The young man came up to the porch, just as Pullen opened the door and turned on the hall light. SOLUTION OF PRECEDING PUZZLE. The very anxiety never to make a mistake—always to do the right thing—is apt to keep you nervous and strained in mind and manner. Ease is attained by ease in yourself; by entering into the plans and pastimes of other people; by listening to their conversation and following their lead if you have nothing particular to say on your own account. Nothing makes you seem a pleasanter companion than the ability to listen sympathetically to others. Nothing can make it easier to join a group than to feel a real interest in that group and its occupations. Nothing is simpler fhan to leave a group of people without more excuse than "I'm sorry, but I must go, for I've an engagement—or an appointment—to keep at such and such a place."

The best advice I can give to those who have this unnatural fear of social mistakes is to try to forget their own problems and take all the interest they can in their neighbor's.

Larry Kopf and Ben Egan Considered for Berth.

Candidates Drilling Despite Absence of Tutor.

EORGETOWN university's baseball team probably will have a big league coach this season. Ben Egan, former coach of the Washington pitchers, and Larry Kopf, once the star infielder of the Cincinnati Reds, are the two men being most seriously considered for the position left vacant by the change in athletic policy at the Hilltop which resulted in John D. O'Reilly confining his efforts to track. This was learned from an authentic source yesterday.

Lou Little, head of the department of physical education at Georgetown, has conferred with Egan and will visit Kopf, who is a brother of Herb Kopf, line coach of the Hilltop eleven last fall, it is said.

Coach Little was the Susiest man in the gym, not directing drills, but put-ting the finishing touches on some three weeks of heavy training to con-dition himself for the task of putting the gridiron candidates through their lessons.

The baseball squad out yesterday was equally divided between pitchers and catchers and also between freshmen and upper-class men. The five pitchers were Burch, Gillespie and Fogarty, of last year's team, and Farrell and Loughman, of the 1926 freshmen nine.

Those trying for the backstop job left vacant by the graduation of Murtaugh included Barabas. O'Neill, Jones, Phelan and Tlerney.

Georgetown's basketball team has canceled its game with Fordham, scheduled for February 22, it has been learned. The game was one to be played on a three-day trip of the Hill-top five, the other contests being booked with the Crescent A. C., at New York, and St. Joseph's, at Philadelphia.

The only home game remaining on the Georgetown schedule is with William and Mary tomorrow, which opens a three-day visit here, meeting George Washington tonight. Georgetown's basketball team has

Palace Plays Orioles

In Hagerstown Mar. 1

Arrangements were completed last night between the Washington and Baltimore professional basketball clubs to stage an exhibition game in Hagerstown on Tuesday, March 1, under the promotion of the business men of the Maryland city.

As the Palace quintet several years ago, Owner George Marshall's tossers appeared in Hagerstown on many occasions, meeting the streng Elk team there, and the Capital City team became a good drawing card. With Washington now leading the American league, and Baltimore being the strongest court representative in the Old Line State, the coming clash should lure a capacity crowd into the armory, Hagerstown's newist sports arena.

A week prior to this date, February 22, Washington and Baltimore will mix in a league engagement at Baltimore and, during the intervening period, the local players will be husy every night in either league or exhibition contests.

New YORK, Feb. 15 (By A. P.)—
Failing to meet the financial terms of Suzanne Lengien. Charles C. Pyle today announced abant doment of his plans to take the French star and the members of his professional tennis troupe on a tour of Europe.

According to William C. Pickens, Pyle's representative, Suzanne's requirements approximated the terms upon which she came to this country last fall as a professional. For the tour which closed last night in Providence, R. I., the French "Queen of the Courts" received a flat guarantee of $50,000 and $150 per cent of the gate receipts. According to Pickens, she reaped a total of $100,000 from the venture, including royalties from the use of her name for commercial purposes.

Lengien expects to close parette.

Lenglen expects to close negetiations with European promoters, however. Paul Feret, her countryman, and Howard O. Kinsey, of California, probably will accompany her when she sails for home Satur-day.

In a formal statement setting forth that he declined to "participate in a bidding contest" for the services of the players, Pyle said he would "resume tennis activities when an opportunity to evolve profit is visualized."

His representatives declined to say whether he contemplates making an offer to William T. Tilden, although they predicted the former national champion would turn professional at the close of the 1927 outdoor season.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

I took a five-minute extra period and all the basketball ability the University of Maryland tossers could muster to avenge an early-season defeat at the hands of the Virginia five last night by a 29-28 score in Ritchie gymnasium.

For the number of thrills, closeness of the score, speed and fighting spirit of the players, the game was easily the outstanding one of this season on the College Park court. Despite such appealing qualities, the game was surprisingly free from any of the roughness which is generally the inevitable in such cases.

By actual count, the score was tied seven times, and the lead changed hands on six occasions during the 45 minutes that the spectators were in a frenzy.

Entering the extra period after Maryland had fought its way to a 25-all score at the close of regulation time, the rivals tried in vain to score for three of the precious minutes of the added session.

The Old Liners finally turned the trick, Stevens making a perfect side-court shot on a pass from outside by "Ham" Adams, Maryland's outstanding hero. Then, as if to muffle the cheers of the Maryland rooters (and it did). Cabell put the ball squarely through the rim from near the jumping circle to tie the score again.

With barely more than a minute to play Faber was hacked while shooting. He missed his two tries, but the second shot bounced off the rim onto Linkous hand. Linkous tapped the ball in for what proved the winning point.

Hurlers Profit By Onslow's Coaching

Stiff Session Is Held; Size of Pitchers Pleases Tutor.

Two Young Catchers Signed; Crowder Tries His Speed.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 15—For more than two hours this morning Manager ("Bucky") Harris led his young Nationals through a training session which had all calling for help before the second 1927 workout had ended. With so many hurlers on hand and only Bennie Tate and Coach Jack Onslow representing the catching staff, the problem of giving all the hurlers a turn at a little more speed was solved by the signing of two local boys to help out as backstops. One is Alberto Pedero, a Cuban, who worked in this capacity last spring, and the other answers to the name of Gene Hudgins.

This quartet handled the pitchers in shifts, after they had warmed up by tossing to each other and although they were not allowed to cut loose, the ball plunked in the big mitts louder than was the case yesterday. Gen. Crowder was continually warned by Onslow to take things easily, this had reporting that his arm was not sore at

George Murray was another who was able to brag that his wing was not bothering him, all of the others ad-mitting that their first day out had stiffened them up in varying degrees.

The flinging opened the day's program, this being followed by pepper drills. Then came four red-hot volley ball games, with Harris' team the victor. The detected foot-pounding laps around the race track concluded the work-out.

The cup tie competition goes into its second round next Sunday when the six surviving teams will meet in three

Barnett, who rode Black Nan, lodged a claim of foul against the winner but the stewards refused to allow the claim. OLLYER'S COMMENT SPORT of KINGS M Iss BOYD.

One for the lads—from way down deep in the old pickling vat. Lamp the gab the chief of staff appends: "Only needs to race to rechief of staff appends: "Only needs to race to recent morning trials to come home on the chin strap. Has drawn No. 1 post position, which gives her much the best of this unwieldly field." Hey boy, let that soak in. AVIATOR is also well thought of, while AROMATIC is given one more chance. The latter will in all probability rule the first choice. In the second spasm it looks like old BRUNS-WICK has another purse at his mercy. In that last winning effort the old fellow only galloped—from end to end. LONGPOINT favors the mudbetter—but should prove the contender. Tab the ring action closely in this race. SPECKLED BEAUTY and OMNIA for what is left.

BEST FRIEND, which earlier in the season was rated a bit better than the kind she is asked to meet in the third, seems to have a decided call. In support of this I might PUT it down now for a double-riveted, copper-cornered fact: Prince Albert will give you more pleasure to the cubic inch than any other tobacco you ever packed in a pipe. Maybe I'm prejudiced. Even so, my statement holds. I'll leave it to you, after your first P. A. pipe-load.

Buy a tidy red tin of P. A. and follow these simple directions: Tuck about a thimbleful into the bowl of your favorite pipe. Light up, and pull that cool, consoling smoke up the stem. Exhale slowly and get the full benefit of that wonderful Prince Albert taste.

Cool as a claim-adjuster. Sweet as an unexpected inheritance. Fragrant as pine-boughs, swaying in a summer breeze. Mild, but not willy-nilly, if you get me. And of course you do! Make the test today and check-in with what I've been telling you.

You'll probably say I wasn't enthusiastic enough! Anyhow, get some Prince Albert now and get on the sunny side of pipe-pleasure. No matter what your previous experience with a pipe has been; no matter how set you appear to be, try Prince Albert. It will be a revelation!

Central Beaten, 29-21 After Leading for First Half.

A TER leading Strayer's Business college for the first half, Central High's tossers lost their defensive grip on the downtown team and was forced to take a 29-21 licking. The game, the "rubber" battle of a threegame series, was played at the City club.

Sharpshooting by Burgess and Nee sent the Central five out in front at the start of the game and put it on the long end of a 13-10 count at the first half rest.

Central could not cope with the brand of ball exhibited by Strayer's in the third period and was held scoreless while Cappelli and David led an attack which gave the Penpushers a 20-13 margin to start the last period.

Central regained its stride toward the end of the game but could not make up for the damage done earlier in the half.

Warwick Five Engages Calvary M. E. Tonight

Warvick Collegians, who have been setting a sizzling pace in the unlimited ranks, will encounter another formidable foe tonight in the Calvary M. E. quintet in the Calvary symnasium at 9 o'clock. The Collegians, judging by their record, are expecting to defeat the Churchmen, but the latter are dangerous, especially on their home court. If "Bus" Freed's aggregation can get "field day" when he dropped in eleven over the Calvary hurdle tonight, it should have an even chance to topple the champion Eagle five in their engagement Sunday.

Tells You About

No other stroke in the game of Golf calls for more practice and concentration than Putting. One sees good players reach a 450-yard hole in two strokes and then fall down on the putting green. A stroke is a stroke and the man who boasts a good putting stroke is insured against ruining a par or birdie score by a few inaccurate putts.

To obtain the best results from putting, one should stand as erect as possible, keeping weight di-vided, heels touching each other, the right toe opposite the ball and the toe of the left pointing toward the hole.

The stroke is done with the right the stroke is done with the right hand and with the wrists. Keep the right elbow resting on the thigh throughout the entire stroke and be sure that the weight is not shifted. The Overlapping Grip is

When "lining up the Ball" it should lie in a direct line between the player and the hole when he is standing in back of it (the ball). Then an imaginary line is drawn from hole to ball when the player has taken his stance; he then picks another spot about an inch from the ball and plays over that spot. It is essential that this should be done for it permits the player to watch the ball, the imaginary line and the club simultaneously. Be careful during the stroke that the club does not turn.

DO NOT HURRY—TAKE TIME AND CONCENTRATE. This Completes Jack Tucker's Wednesday Talks on

Reaction in the domestic division is largely due to the enormous volume of new offerings received in the market since the first of the year, a portion of which is yet undigested. The immediate demand of numerous buyers has been supplied by these new bonds, with the result that they are temporarily out of the market. A few industrials showed limited activity. Wickwire-Spencer Steel obligations were more or less buoyant, and Barnsdall sinking fund 6s had good support. Railway issues were heavy.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Feb. 15 (By Associated Press.).—Reactionary tendencies were more pronounced in today's curb market, although several strong spots developed during the course of the session. Trading was again largely professional in character, with a moderate expansion in volume.

Speculative interest in the oils was limited to a few issues, with Vacuum, Guif and Darby prominent on the upside. Prairie Pipe Line lost ground on profit-taking. Little concern was expressed over the recent sharp increase in crude production, probably because of the relatively stable price structure and the fact that consumption was more than keeping pace with output.

A further advance of over a point in Durant Motors, coincident with the establishment of a new record high in Auburn and a 23-point jump in Ford, of Canada, attracted attention to the motor group, which had been under pressure earlier in the year on the theory that the industry would be unable to maintain last year's recordbreaking sales and production. An advance of a point in American Rayon Products was the only development of consequence in the artificial slik group.

Baking, coal and radio shares held airly steady. Banctally continued its steady advance by touching another necovered about half of its loss. Warner Pictures B was in good demand, closing a point higher. Royal Baking Powder soared 19 points on a few sales.

Active public utilities showed only narrow and irregular changes, American Gas & Electric preferred sagging to a new low for the year at 96.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Feb. 15 (By A. P.).—The cotton market was generally higher today on trade buying and covering, which seemed to be promoted by the relative firmness of Liverpool cables and reports of continued steadiness in the Southern spot markets. May contracts sold up from 13.90 to 14.15, or 25 points net higher, and closed at 14.11, the general market closing very steady, at a net advance of 19 to 23 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of one to three points, the initial response to the firmness in Liverpool being modified by overnight selling orders brought in by the declines yesterday. Prices sagged back to about yesterday's closing quotations after the call, but offerings were soon absorbed, and the market made a generally steady showing the rest of the day.

There was considerable buying here during the first hour sgainst sales in Liverpool. This demand tapered off after the close abroad, but there was further buying here against sales in Liverpool. This demand tapered off after the close abroad, but there was further buying here against sales in New Orleans, while slight dips appeared to bring in spurts of covering. Boot Wall street and Southern shorts were credited with buying on the afterday had been industry trade and relative to 15.41 in the trade of a feelers of yesterday had been important to the face of yesterday had been comparatively scarcy from the South. Between the seed of the advance in Liverpool had been due to good trade calling for London and continued absence of selling pressure from the South. Between the was an active business in cotton cloths for shipment to India.

The Wall street buying noted during the afternoon may have been promoted by the firmer tone of the stock market, but business was less active than yesterday.

Exports for the day, 77.796, making 7,160,949 so far this season. Port receipts, 59.313. U. S. port stocks, 2,855,-938.

SINKING OF MAINE

Dr. Ferrera, Cuban Ambassador. Also Lauds Americans in Fort Myer Address.

The birth of two nations, the mod-ern United States and the Republic of Cuba, proceded from the blowing up of the Maine and from the sacrifice of the 267 men who sank into the see 29 years ago, speakers declared at the Maine memorial exercises yesterday afternoon in the riding hall at Fort Myer, Va.

Cheers Over Roosevelt.

The mention of Roosevelt elicited a prolonged cheering from the audience, many of whom were Spanish war veterans or their relatives. The exercises were held under auspices of the District department of United Spanish War Veterans.

Department Commander Edward J. Nolan contrasted the present Cuba with the Cuba of that time. The entire populace of Cuba 29 years ago, he said, were literally fugitives, and the soldiery hopelessly was outnumbered. That condition has been replaced by a soldiery hopelessly was outnumbered. That condition has been replaced by a first and happy nation of people, he said.

Out. John Lewis Smith, past commander, in chief of the United Spanish War Veterans, was master of ceremonies. Lee ft. Harris, past department commander, issued the call to order. United States Army Chaplain John T. Axton, Jr., of Fort Myer, pronounced the invocation, and department chaplain L. Paul Reprolds, the benediction. The Marine band played. Mrs. Flora McGill Keefer sang the "Star-Spangled Banner."

At the close a salute in memory of the Maine dead was given by a platoon of marines, the riding hall resounding with 62 rifle shots. In addition, a platoon of bluejackets and a troop of dismounted cavalry were present. At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, one hour before the exercises, members of the women's auxiliaries, headed by Mrs. Edna R. Summerfield, placed a wreath of flowers at the base of the Maine memorial in Arlington cemetery. The wreath was presented by President Coolidge and was delivered from the White House but a few moments before.

50 G. A. R. MEMBERS OPEN ENCAMPMENT

Maj. Gen. J .L. Clem Is Given Nomination to Head Potomac Department.

Fifty veterans of the civil war gathred yesterday afternoon in G. A. R. hall, on Pennsylvania avenue, to celebrate the fifty-ninth encampment of the department of the Potomac, Grand memorial exercises yesterday afternoon in the riding hall at Fort Myer, Va.

Before that time, it was pointed out, the United States was held by the world in small regard and the people of Cuba were beseiged by overwhelming odds of Spaniards who had shut them in their homes and were starving them there. The blowing up of the Maine marked the beginning of an epoch, speakers said. It prepared the way for the twentieth century, with the United States in a position of world leadership, and for a republic of free and contented people in Cuba.

It also marked, speakers pointed out, the exit of another great nation—Spain. Representative Scott Leavitt, of Montana, declared it opened the door by which this nation and Cuba entered to their present state, and Spain, with bended head, passed out.

Dr. Don Orestes Ferrera, Ambassador from Cuba, declared the sacrifice of the sailors and marines who died with the Maine were not citizens of Cuba by right of birth, but they have been since then, by a superior title, by the sacrifice of their lives.

Assails Unpreparedness State.

He added:

"The men who perished with the Maine were not citizens of Cuba by right of birth, but they have been since then, by a superior title, by the sacrifice of their lives.

The accusations of imperialism, on the contrary, find a refutation in the untrammeled existence of the republic of Cuba, from which no attribute of its sovereignty ever has been withdrawn, notwithstanding the statements sometimes made by mistaken friends or deceitful enemies."

Mr. Leavitt declared "the Spanish war taught us many lessons, but the principal lesson was that unpreparedness is a national crime." The 2,000 persons who were in attendance at the exercises loudly applauded when he made this statement. He added: "Free governments are the hope of the world. And in the interest of free government it is necessary that free government it is necessary that free governments should be able to defend themselves against the assaults of oppression."

He pointed out the great diffficulties the United States faced at the begin ring of the Spanish war and how numbers of men lost their lives as a result of unpreparedness.

Jasper Post at Annual Banquet Tonight.

Senator Cole L. Blease will give the principal address at the annual dinner to be held tonight in the Army post No. 13 of the American Legion, in commemoration of Sergt. Jasper's leed at the siege of Fort Sullivan on June 28, 1776.

Issuance of 1927 automobile license tags struck another snag yesterday when M. C. Hargrove, District purchasing agent, learned that the Maryland penitentiary had increased its price from 13½ to 15½ cents per pair, since bidding on the manufacture of the tags last autumn. The reason assigned was that the bid was on 100,000 pairs of plates, wheeras now there are only 41,800 to be prepared.

Hargrove, * therefore, changed his plan again and advertised for new sealed proposals, to be opened Monday.
